LEADERS | INSPIRE. IMPACT. INFLUENCE.

Sponsorship Information Sheet

About LIHC:

A group of undergraduates created the Leadership Institute at Harvard College in 2004 as the fusion of several fledgling student organizations. Bringing together the individual groups that focused on leadership and communication among students helped propel LIHC to the forefront of leadership training. Today, LIHC continues to offer innovative programming to not only Harvard undergraduates on campus but also international communities abroad. The organization has won the recognition and esteem of the Office of Student Life for the work LIHC does on campus.

Our Committees:

Harvard Leadership Magazine publishes Rise, a print and online magazine with articles, interviews, and resources for leadership development.

Leadership Development Initiative brings distinguished speakers to Harvard's campus to participate in events that showcase the tenets of leadership.

LEADS runs an eight-week program tailored to provide Harvard undergraduates with fundamental leadership skills.

Strategic Development hosts an annual leadership conference for motivated high school students from across the region and secures long-term funding for the organization.

Social Outreach runs educational workshops for high school students in the greater Boston area to equip them with leadership skills and inspire them to address areas of concern in their own communities.

Youth Lead the Change hosts five-day leadership conferences for high school students around the country and world in locations including Boston, Myanmar, China, India and Puerto Rico where participants study issues they care about and develop projects to address those problems.
